STAMM GETS THE VERDICT.

Miss Murray Loses Her $20,000 Breach of Promise Suit.

Lawyer Levy's Poetical Summing Up for the Defendant.

The jury in the case of Matilda Murray against William Stamm for $20,000 damages for breach of promise found a verdict in favor of Stamm this morning But twenty minutes were spent in de liberation. The case was heard in Part I. of the Superior Court before Judge Sedgwick.

The court-room was crowded when the jury announced its verdict, and some people started to applaud. They were nuickly checked.

Lawyer Smith, counsel for Miss Mur ray, obtained a stay of thirty days in which to appeal the case. Miss Murray left the court looking very downcast. Miss Murray's story is to the effect that in July, 1891, Stamm asked her to become his wife. She consented, but i month afterwards he told her he would make her unhappy by marrying her. They kept up their friendship, how ever, and once again he said he loved her and would marry her. Then again he changed his mind. That was in No-vember last, and the following month the suit was begun. Trial of the suit began yesterday.

Lawyer Levy addressed the jury this morning for Stamm. He began by stat ing that he did not desire to impugn the motives of Miss Murray in any way She was a good pure woman, he said out had been badly misled.

Waxing eloquent as he dwelt on her story Lawyer Levy read these lines in a sarcastic strain:

No warning of the approaching flame: Swiftly, alike sudden death it came. I loved the moment I beheid. Again, quoting from Byron, he said:

Why did she love him? Curious fool he still, Is human love the growth of human will? The lawyer's argument was in fact peem from beginning to end, inter-persed with quotations from various authors. Concerning the non-produc-tion of the love letters he read from way, Central, Windsor Hotel, Westminster and the Metropolitan.

When Lawyer Smith arose to reply he spent about five minutes gazing first upon the plaintiff, then upon Stamm, as if, looking for inspiration. Then he pointed to the blushing Miss Murray with one hand, and shaking another forefinger at the jury, said:

"Gentlemen! Michael Angelo might have carved out a more perfect model of a woman and Raphael might have painted a more perfect form, but never could they have portrayed the form of any woman that could represent feeling more noble and emotional than the heart of this defendant contains."

Miss Murray wept as her counsel went on to expose Stemm's conduct. Her sissumming up.

He were vacinated at one time and the males another. When the employees were satisfied that thy would not lose their positions because of incapacity through vaccination, they were only too gliad to be inoculated.

The proprietor of a hotel was first visited. He referred the inspectors to the housekeeper, who gathred all the female help in a room. There they were vaccinated in short order. The men, including porters and beliboys, were similarly assembled and treated. The same programme was carried out in all the notels.

Within the next few days a corps of vaccinators will make a thorough canwas among the lodging-houres of the city and particularly those in the liowery and vicinity. Any one found who has not been vaccinated will receive attention.

Dr. Lee was a native of Montreal, Can., and came to Oyster Hay in 1887. He secured a position in Conkling's drug atore. He remained in that position about four and a half years, when he established a business for himself.

He failed shortly afterwards. Since that time he has field various positions, among which was that of druggist for Talitaferro, at Hickaville. He came to Oyster Hay on Monday and took a reom at Franklin's Hotel.

Nothing unusual was noticed in his actions. Lee was sixty-eight years of age, and here his age extremely well. In his pockuts were found $114.50 and a baggago check, No. 4.763. L. I. Raliroad.
